What is HIPAA?

The Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (HIPAA) was enacted by the United States Congress and signed by President Bill Clinton in 1996. Title I of HIPAA protects health insurance coverage for workers and their families when they change or lose their jobs. Title II of HIPAA, known as the Administrative Simplification (AS) provisions, requires the establishment of national standards for electronic health care transactions and national identifiers for providers, health insurance plans, and employers.

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) published the HIPAA Privacy Rule in December 2000, which was later modified in August 2002. This Rule set national standards for the protection of individually identifiable health. Compliance with the Privacy Rule was required as of April 14, 2003 (April 14, 2004, for small health plans).

HHS published the HIPAA Security Rule in February 2003. The Security Rule establishes national standards to protect individuals' electronic personal health information that is created, received, used, or maintained by a covered entity. The Security Rule requires appropriate administrative, physical and technical safeguards to ensure the confidentiality, integrity, and security of electronic protected health information. Compliance with the Security Rule was required as of April 20, 2005 (April 20, 2006 for small health plans).

The Office of Civil Rights (OCR) administers and enforces the Privacy Rule and the Security Rule. Other HIPAA Administrative Simplification Rules are administered and enforced by the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services.

The Enforcement Rule provides standards for the enforcement of all the Administrative Simplification Rules.

All of the HIPAA Administrative Simplification Rules are located at 45 CFR Parts 160, 162, and 164. The Security Rule is located at 45 CFR Part 160 and Subparts A and C of Part 164.
